

little aevidum Promise

Being an Aevidum member is more than being part of a club. It means being someone who helps others feel accepted, appreciated, acknowledged, and cared for. As a Little Aevidum member, I promise to do my best to live out the Aevidum message at school, at home, and wherever I go.

I will include others.

- I will look for ways to make people feel welcome.
- I will invite others to join in, especially when someone seems left out.
- I will remember that everyone deserves to feel like they belong.

I will use my words to help, not hurt.

- I will choose words that are kind, encouraging, and respectful.
- I will think before I speak, post, or share something about someone else.
- I will not use my words to embarrass, tease, exclude, or put someone down.

I will notice people.

- I will pay attention when someone seems upset, left out, or like they might need a friend.
- I don't have to fix someone's problems, but I can notice, care, and get help from a trusted adult when I'm worried about someone.

I will listen.

- I will give people my attention when they are talking.
- I will try to understand how someone else might be feeling, even when their feelings are different from mine.
- I will not make fun of someone for sharing their thoughts or feelings.

I will be a positive example.

- I know that being an Aevidum member means that my actions matter.
 - I will try to make choices that show kindness, caring, courage, and respect, even when no one is watching.
 - I won't be perfect, and I won't expect anyone else to be perfect either.
 - I will keep learning, keep trying, and keep choosing kindness.

I will ask for help.

- Being an Aevidum member does not mean I have to solve someone's problems on my own.
- If a friend tells me something that makes me worried about their safety or wellbeing, I will tell a trusted adult.
- I will remember my roles:
 - I can listen.
 - I can care.
 - I can help someone find help.
 - I don't have to handle it alone.

I will help make Aevidum a safe space.

- What people share in our club should be treated with care and respect.
- I will not spread someone's personal story, make jokes about something someone shared, or gossip about club members.
- I will help make Little Aevidum a place where everyone feels comfortable being themselves.

My Little Aevidum Promise

I understand that being a Little Aevidum member means more than wearing the name. It means trying to make my school a kinder, more caring place through my words and actions. If I don't always get it right, that's okay. I will learn, apologize when I make a mistake, and try again. I promise to do my best to live out the "I've got your back" message and help others feel accepted, appreciated, acknowledged, and cared for.
